At the heart of NuHealth, Long Island's premier, comprehensive health care system, is Nassau University Medical Center (NUMC). Since 1935, this groundbreaking tertiary-care teaching hospital has been a source of comfort and reassurance— providing compassionate and cutting-edge medical care to millions of Nassau County residents.

NUMC has enhanced its impressive medical and surgical capabilities through its partnership with the North Shore-LIJ Health System. The collaborative aspects of this dynamic relationship provide NUMC patients with extended referral and hospital-transfer opportunities when treatment guidelines require highly specialized protocols. In addition, this important alliance has given NUMC professional access to some of the region's leading specialists, including the renowned North Shore-LIJ Cardiology team. Reciprocal affiliation is a modern approach to medical care that benefits everyone. Health care providers can expand the scope of their services, while their patients can benefit from the combined skill sets, expertise and technological resources that come from collaborative participation.
